

Good news for September!

Two incentives to encourage people to adopt public transit, a survey for our paratransit users and work progressing on the implementation of preferential bus measures will mean taking the bus this fall will just be common sense!

THE $1 INCENTIVE FARE AND THE NO SOLO DRIVING CHALLENGE: TWO MEASURES TO ENCOURAGE TAKING PUBLIC TRANSIT

On September 16, the Société de transport de Laval will be encouraging Lavalers to take the bus with a $1 incentive fare day. Everyone taking the bus on our incentive fare day is entitled to a reduced fare on our regular network. The STL invites people who aren't regular clients to take advantage of the discount and try taking public transit.

From September 15-30 as a part of Semaines de la mobilité, other activities will also be taking place including the Défi sans auto solo. During this event being held on September 21, the STL will award a prize of six months of free public transportation on its regular network to a former driver who switches to another means of travel.

WE'RE HARD AT WORK!

Work on the implementation of preferential bus measures (MPB) in Laval is well underway. The work on Notre-Dame was finished in August. This work includes the creation of a reserved bus lane, a central median, landscaping, the installation of prioritized traffic and bus priority signals and improving the position of some bus stops and shelters. The work being done on Curé-Labelle will be wrapping up in September with new reserved bus lanes, bypass lanes, bus priority signals and priority traffic lights and moving some stops and bus shelters to make service more efficient. The other improvement projects will be ending over the course of this fall.

THE STL IS LISTENING TO WHAT OUR PARATRANSIT USERS HAVE TO SAY

Over the last few years, the STL's paratransit clients have voiced their opinions on several improvements that have helped us to better serve and inform our clients. From automated calls announcing the imminent arrival of the vehicle and the reminder service the eve of trips, Internet reservations and, most recently, the addition of displays in our minibuses, these are just some of the improvements you've helped us make. To better establish the needs of our clients and identify improvement priorities, the STL is asking its clients to fill out a survey that will be made available on our website from September 22 to October 13. Participation prizes will be drawn from the respondents.
